PRESIDENT’S MESSAGE

Harvey, Irma, and Maria...2017 may best be remembered as the year of the hurricane, with some destructive wildfires along the way, not quickly forgotten by optometrists as well as students of optometry. But it will also be remembered as a year where Optometry Cares – The AOA Foundation was there for them, providing much needed assistance (in a record-breaking dollar amount) in the form of disaster relief grants to help pick up the pieces of destroyed practices and homes.

Our foundation is there, though, not just in times of disaster, but with everyday support in many ways. From helping those without access to vision care receive a much-needed eye exam, to reassuring an anxious mother that her baby’s vision is developing normally. Thanks to your donations, we continue to award scholarships to optometry students to ensure the continuation of our profession, honor those who’ve dedicated their lives to furthering optometry under the National Optometry Hall of Fame, and serve as the historians of our past through the efforts of the Archives and Museum of Optometry.

It all starts with you – one optometrist helping another. One optometrist donating time to provide eye exams. One optometrist up at dawn running his or her first 5K at Optometry’s Meeting®. One optometrist writing a check, giving generously of hard-earned dollars to make certain that funds are always there to support our outreach. Regardless of the way you choose to support your foundation, we will remain as good stewards so that each year, we can do more.

2017 was the year that optometrists, and those in industry, stepped forward to make an impact on the profession. I am humbled by the outpouring of support of my fellow optometrists.
A baby’s face lights up upon seeing a parent.

Why? Because of what’s seen.

Making sure that those beautiful eyes can see the world is the reason why InfantSEE exists – to begin a lifetime of eye and vision care. Launched in 2005, the program has now reached more than 139,000 infants across the U.S.

Thanks to a network of thousands of doctors of optometry, the program has identified problems such as refractive errors, ocular health and motility issues that might have otherwise gone undiagnosed.
AOA members are well-suited to provide this care. Ryan Powell, O.D., who practices in the Kansas City, Missouri area, notes that “The InfantSEE program allows for early detection and treatment, if needed, at one easy visit. We are able to create a lifetime eye care plan for these kids. I have also found that InfantSEE gives me the opportunity to educate moms, dads, pediatricians and the public about optometry and the level of care we can provide. This program draws families to my practice and allows us to give back to our community. I couldn’t be more pleased with the InfantSEE program and how it has benefited our community and our practice.”

“The InfantSEE® program allows for early detection and treatment, if needed, at one easy visit.”
“I am blessed to be doing something that I truly love and am lucky to improve the lives of children daily”

- Dr. Reena Patel

“I am blessed to be doing something that I truly love and am lucky to improve the lives of children daily,” Dr. Patel says. “Over the years, I have been extremely lucky to have the most incredible mentors. I cannot thank them enough for their wisdom and never-ending guidance. Their passion for children’s vision is contagious, and I enjoy passing that same enthusiasm down to my students.”

Dr. Patel also is a children’s eye care advocate in her community and state, joining the California Optometric Association in its efforts to promote comprehensive pediatric eye examinations in the legislature.

Since its inception, InfantSEE® has reached more than 139,000 infants across the United States thanks to a network of thousands of doctors of optometry.

A new effort to increase children’s access to eye and vision care was launched in 2017 by Optometry Cares.

Healthy Eyes Healthy Children Community Grants (HEHC) program focuses on increasing the outreach of vision services to communities, families, schools and the medical community with special attention to the underserved children in the U.S. This grant program offers an opportunity for optometrists to collaborate with other community resources so that vision care, including hardware, is provided to children, and optometry is recognized as a vital component of the health care system.

Sponsored by the Essilor Vision Foundation, which also provides in-kind lens and lab support, grants up to $5,000 per grant to optometrists across the nation who propose projects that align with the HEHC objectives. By taking a grassroots approach through the optometric community and working through existing community-based vision care models across the country, funding is intended to spread awareness and increase vision services to address uncorrected vision in each community.

“Sponsored by the Essilor Vision Foundation, which also provides in-kind lens and lab support, grants up to $5,000 per grant to optometrists across the nation who propose projects that align with the HEHC objectives.”
The key objectives of the grant program are:

Objective #1: Strengthen the outreach of community health programs through AOA State Optometric Affiliates and their ability to interface and collaborate with a variety of state and local partners within as well as outside the optometric community.

Objective #2: Increase visibility of optometric care at the state and local levels.

Objective #3: Promote projects and results in a way that drives quality health care and the delivery of care to underserved children.

Objective #4: Provide comprehensive eye examinations and eyeglasses to underserved youth through sustainable community-based solutions across the U.S.

In its inaugural year, HEHC awarded 14 grants totaling more than $65,000, helping doctors of optometry with plans to reach more than 100,000 people in 12 geographically diverse states. HEHC received more than 30 outstanding applications in 2017.

One such grant recipient program is the Ohio Optometric Foundation's In-School Eye Exam (iSee) initiative, which connects children who fail their school's rudimentary vision screening to comprehensive eye examination services furnished by local, volunteer doctors of optometry. According to Tracey Needham, O.D., many schoolchildren go about their day-to-day studies with significant, uncorrected vision impairment. “In Ohio, nearly 50 percent of the students who fail to pass the school vision screening do not follow up with the school nurse’s recommendation to see an optometrist,” she reports. “These children are at a significant disadvantage when it comes to learning and succeeding in school.”

The HEHC program’s 2017 success will ensure its continuation into 2018.

Never was the need so great for Optometry’s Fund for Disaster Relief (OFDR) as it was in 2017—and never have so many doctors of optometry applied for help.

Deadly hurricanes came barreling ashore one after another—first Harvey, followed by Irma and eventually Maria in a matter of days in late August and early September—and they lingered, inflicting billions of dollars in property damages. Optometric practices from Texas to Florida to Puerto Rico didn’t escape the storms’ triple doses of high winds, pelting rain and widespread flooding.

And the donations came flooding in to OFDR, too. More than 400 donors, including individuals and corporations, gave more than $300,000 to OFDR following an appeal for donations by AOA President Christopher J. Quinn, O.D.. More than 100 doctors of optometry were given grants under the fund.

Optometrists weren’t the only ones impacted by the horrific damage. Optometry students in Texas and Puerto Rico lost optometry textbooks and personal belongings. OFDR, in coordination with the American Optometric Student Association, established a fund to provide grants to optometry students under the OFDR umbrella. In its first year, the OFDR Student Fund assisted 71 students with recovery grants.

Among the industry partners that donated to OFDR in 2017 are Luxottica Wholesale, Essilor of America and CooperVision. The Foundation extends special thanks to Vision West, Inc., Eyecare Partners, PERC+IVA, California Optometric Association and Vision Expo for their support and outreach to their members.
“Thank you! I have tears in my eyes. I can’t thank you enough! Things have been tough. Even though we have the office back open and running, the patients are not returning like they were prior to the storm. In addition, the services, internet, phones, etc., have been spotty in service making it more difficult. We had damage in our home as well and things there are moving very slowly. This money will be put to good use, specifically deductibles and for my staff.”
— O.D., Florida

“Wow! Thank you so much to the AOA Foundation! It was very thoughtful of you all to be thinking of us in Puerto Rico during this tough time.”
— Student, Puerto Rico

“Thank you so very much! Insurance still is not giving us the time of day after their denial. We appreciate this so much!”
— O.D., Texas

“Thanks! I appreciate your thoughts. We are luckier than many others, but it has definitely been an ordeal! My practice was closed for 2 weeks and we will be lucky to be back in our house before the end of the year. I will definitely put this grant to good use and I will remember you when I am back on my feet and be in a position to give back to those who have given to me!”
— O.D., Texas

“Thank you so much for making this possible! I have been working hard to rebuild and recover from this. It’s almost like starting all over. I am grateful for the committee consideration, for the TOA and for the AOA.”
— O.D., Texas

VISION USA

VISION USA is as much about community stewardship as it is about providing no-cost eye examinations—it’s about extending a helping hand, and giving disadvantaged Americans the chance to get back on track.

In 2017, because VISION USA is a gateway into the health care system for many low-income, uninsured families, a new service was added to offer even greater incentive for those families—and providers—to open that door.

In partnership with the Essilor Vision Foundation, a no-cost lens and lab services program for AOA members participating in the VISION USA program was launched in Texas and Alabama. This trial model provides material and service support for VISION USA doctors to use when caring for their communities.

Our nearly 3,000 VISION USA providers, who have aided more than 430,000 low-income, uninsured people with comprehensive eye examinations since the program’s inception in 1991, have our heartfelt gratitude. We were pleased to once again recognize three of those doctors with the VISION USA Service Award. This distinct honor from the foundation annually recognizes AOA members who provide exemplary volunteerism and community service through VISION USA. This year’s awardees—Coy Brown, O.D., Sheridon Gove, O.D., and Carey Patrick, O.D.,—are all long-time volunteers and demonstrate how the program can help members of their community experience and interact with the world to the best of their ability.

It’s about community, providing no-cost eye examinations, and extending a helping hand.
For the second year in a row, Johnson and Johnson, Inc. selected Optometry Cares and the InfantSEE® program to be a part of their “Donate a Photo” (DAP) campaign, which kicked off just prior to Optometry’s Meeting and people donated more than 11,000 photos! AOA members and their families hit the running trail to support Optometry Cares at the 5K Run/Walk, sponsored by The Vision Council and Transitions. The Pentagon served as a backdrop to the scenic Mt. Vernon Trail along the Potomac River to the hundreds of participants who raised nearly $20,000 for the foundation.

The Foundation had a visible presence with the National Optometry Hall of Fame induction ceremony, as well as staff providing information to attendees in AOA Central in the Exhibit Hall.

The Optometry Cares Recognition Reception was another highlight of 2017 Optometry’s Meeting. The Foundation’s top donors and supporters enjoyed an evening celebrating all the work they made possible through their generosity.

The 2017 Optometry’s Meeting was once again a great opportunity for members to learn more about and support the foundation.
HERITAGE SERVICES

It is the critical mission of Optometry Cares’ Heritage Services programs to provide eye care professionals and the communities they serve with a deep knowledge and holistic understanding of optometry’s contribution to society. Fulfilling this mission would not be possible without the collections held in The Archives & Museum of Optometry (AMO) and the scholarship produced by The Optometric Historical Society (OHS).

ARCHIVES & MUSEUM OF OPTOMETRY

The Archives & Museum of Optometry (AMO) has been caring for objects that document the history of optometry since 2009. By collecting, preserving and sharing these materials, the AMO is able to increase public awareness of optometry, provide educational programming on the importance of eye care, and facilitate original research in vision science and the history of the profession. In this way, the AMO supports the mission of Optometry Cares - The AOA Foundation.

Location at the American Optometric Association headquarters in St. Louis, MO, the AMO strives to ensure the protection of our legacy for future generations.

OPTOMETRIC HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Founded in 1969, the Optometric Historical Society’s (OHS) mission is to protect and promote the historical legacy of the profession of optometry. The OHS supports its mission by encouraging the collection and care of archival materials and museum objects that document the history of optometry, identifying and marking places that important to the historical development of optometry, and recognizing individuals who have made significant contributions to scholarship on optometry history. The OHS meets annually to host the Blast from the Past event featuring invited presentations by experts in the field of optometry history, produces the quarterly journal Hindsight and maintains a list of optometry history resources on its webpage.

The AMO continues to collect, preserve, and share this history. The challenge extends beyond conservation and preservation to constantly improving access to materials through cataloging, exhibition and research.

“The OHS is working very hard in a number of ways to see that the progress our profession has made in the past 50 years is carefully documented before we lose the visionaries who made it possible.”

CAMP COURAGE: A HELEN KELLER EXPERIENCE

The 5th annual “Camp Courage: A Helen Keller Experience” was held in Tuscumbia, AL on September 14-16, 2017. Twenty-one visually and hearing impaired students attended and were able to experience a scene from “The Miracle Worker” play, create pottery and candles, participate in various outdoor activities, and even dine in Helen Keller’s dining room. The camp’s success ensures that children with visual impairments are able to learn and socialize in a fun and secure environment.

SCHOLARSHIPS AND GRANTS

Optometry Cares is committed to doing its part to support the future of the profession, today’s optometry students. To achieve that, students who demonstrate their commitment to optometry are awarded prominent scholarships and grants, which encourages their continued efforts to make a difference in their community and profession.

In 2017, the foundation awarded more than $30,000 to these outstanding students:

InfantSEE® Scholarship

Jason Foote, Southern College of Optometry, was honored with first place ($7,500) and Alyssa Drew, Michigan College of Optometry - Ferris State University, was awarded second place ($3,000). Sponsored by Vision West Inc., the InfantSEE® Scholarship Grant requires third-year optometry students to write an essay and develop a short video describing their commitment to children’s vision. They must also desire to participate in the InfantSEE program.

Bernard Maitenaz Scholarship

Third-year student Paula Kutzner, Pacific University College of Optometry, was the recipient of the Bernard Maitenaz Scholarship ($10,000), which honors the inventor of the Varilux lens and is sponsored by Essilor.

Dr. Pat & Patrick Cummings Scholarship

Nathan Morrow, a fourth-year student from Indiana University College of Optometry, was honored with the Dr. Pat & Patrick Cummings Scholarship ($5,000). In tribute to father and son, both of whom passed away in separate tragic accidents, the Dr. Pat & Patrick Cummings Memorial Fund was established through Optometry Cares. This opportunity was generously funded by numerous individual donors, as well as a significant contribution from Johnson & Johnson Vision Care, Inc.

Dr. Larry J. Alexander Scholarship for Education

Valerie Thatcher Tran, a third-year student at the University of California-Berkeley College of Optometry, was the recipient of the Dr. Larry J. Alexander Scholarship for Education ($2,500). Sponsored in part by Optovue, the scholarship is dedicated to Dr. Alexander’s work as an educator and ensures his legacy of optometric education will continue. Additionally, a one-time “Inspiration Award” was bestowed by the family of Dr. Alexander to Phuong Liem of New England College of Optometry in the amount of $1,000.

Dr. Seymour Galina Grant

Third-year student Seth Goolsbee, University of Houston College of Optometry, received the Dr. Seymour Galina Grant ($2,500). Applicants are required to write an essay about qualities they have developed through financial planning and work experience during and/or before optometry school that will be of value in a professional practice.
Thanks to generous donors and volunteers, Optometry Cares® is proud to say that more people donated to the Foundation in 2017 than ever before. Because of countless acts of generosity and good will demonstrated by these individual donors, industry partners, and Board Members, more people throughout the country have access to quality eye health and vision care.

Each Optometry Cares® program serves a unique population and enables us to meet the needs of the disadvantaged, underserved, uninsured and the most vulnerable among us. Last year, over 60 million people were in serious risk of vision loss due to eye disease and only half of them visited an eye doctor in the last 12-month period. We cannot sit back and watch disadvantaged populations limit their potential and quality of life. With your assistance, we can help those in need see a brighter future!
